

American Rescue Plan

Summary

Unsurprisingly, the conversation around the topic American Rescue Plan has shown up in a large number of local government discussions during the second quarter of 2021 - appearing in 4,967 documents.

As municipalities determine the funds available to them and how to allocate them, we anticipate the large volume of ARP discussions to continue.

California has been the most active in their ARP discussions, tallying 549 during Q2. Almost twice as many as the next closest state (Ohio, 289) and doubling up MA who logged 250 ARP discussions.

Interesting Find

The chair said that he would like to hold our June Finance Committee meeting before the Town Council meeting so we can discuss and make recommendations to the Council about possible use of ARP funds in the current fiscal year and begin planning for future uses of those funds and discussion of our projected end of the year general fund balance and any recommendations to use funds from our 1.12% authorization...

Stay Ahead of Crucial Municipal Decisions

Curate

About Curate

At Curate, we know you want to be an informed and connected leader in the communities you do business. To be that, you need to know about decisions in those local governments that could affect your business.

The problem is that municipal information, such as agendas and minutes from city council meetings, is challenging to find and sort through, leaving you little to no time to act.

That's why we developed a tool that captures all that crucial information in one easy-to-use platform. With more than 12,000 municipalities in our database, our team and proprietary technology extract the most relevant information not to miss one crucial detail.

Stop getting burned by surprises in local government. Instead, seize opportunities and reduce risk with actionable municipal information by Curate.
